IIHSE – International Institute of Health Safety Environment

Who We Are?

International Institute of Health, Safety and Environment (IIHSE) is an independent and impartial institute that aims to strengthen international collaborations, enhance knowledge sharing, and support academic research in interdisciplinary fields such as health, safety, environment, quality, and sustainability. In addition, our institution also operates a national-level body named IHSE. Both IIHSE and IHSE were established by associations sharing the same management team and act jointly regarding national and international activities as two separate institutes and associations.

Our Mission

- To conduct joint projects with universities, research institutions, public bodies, and the private sector
- To ensure global knowledge flow through scientific publications, seminars, and conferences
- To provide international internship, training, and career opportunities for students and academics
- To pioneer projects that raise social awareness in health, safety, and environmental fields

Our Vision

To become one of the world's leading academic and professional networks in health, safety, and environment, serving as an international reference center that delivers solutions for a safe, healthy, and sustainable future.
